Ryan Fox is a North Carolina-based watercolor painter whose intriguing work features a variety of unusual watercolor techniques. His paintings have won numerous awards and have been published in Watercolor Artist Magazine and Splash 15, 16, & 19. Each workshop day will concentrate on a specific technique. Watercolor batik (shown above right) uses a wax resist process and traditional watercolor paints on Japanese rice paper. Impressionistic Watercolor (above left) incorporates pouring techniques and the use of a mouth atomizer to achieve an atmospheric effect that cannot be created with a brush. This will be a very hands-on and informative workshop.
